Ban the Grand National

Every year more than 400 horses are raced to death in Britain. The racing industry also slaughters thousands of 'unprofitable' animals who fail to make the grade. The Grand National at Aintree is particularly cruel and is designed to push horses to their limit and beyond. The majority of horses fail to finish the race, with equine death and injury being a routine feature.

We, the undersigned:

believe that however much welfare standards improve, the Grand National is morally unacceptable.
We therefore call for a ban on this race.
