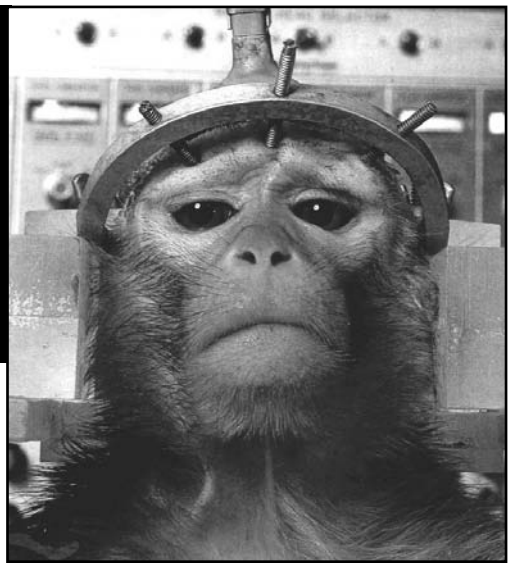
BAN WARFARE EXPERIMENTS ON ANIMALS



In British laboratories, animals are poisoned, gassed, wounded, blasted, infected and killed in weapons experiments. Most of this work takes place at the Ministry of Defence Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment, at Porton Down in Wiltshire.

Animals used include guinea pigs, rabbits, mice, dogs, rats, sheep, pigs, goats and monkeys. The results of the tests cannot even be reliably applied to people because of crucial biological differences between ourselves and other species.

We the undersigned:

Believe that weapons testing on animals is immoral and cruel and urge the government to implement a total ban on the use of animals in weapons research.
