GRAND NATIONAL death and destruction

- Since 2000, 50 horses have died from their injuries at the Aintree Grand National meeting – 11 in the National itself.
- They are amongst around 200 horses killed due to racing in Great Britain each year.
- Many horses do not enjoy a happy retirement when their racing career is over, and can suffer a downward spiral of neglect, ending at the slaughterhouse.

TAKE ACTION!

More than 100,000 people signed a government petition, calling for the British Horseracing Authority to be stripped of its role as welfare regulator for race horses. A new independent organisation is needed to stop horses losing their lives on racecourses.

Write to your MP today and help take action for race horses:

Sanctuary Not Cruelty...

is Animal Aid's campaign to offer a positive alternative to betting on, or boycotting, the Grand National. If you're a 'punter' – or take part in the Grand National sweepstake – why not send the money you would have bet on the big race to a horse sanctuary instead? They all desperately need your help to look after the victims of cruelty, greed and neglect.

Former race horse Underwriter (photo over page) was saved from slaughter by Hillside Animal Sanctuary after the racing industry made no provision for him after his racing days were over. This was despite him winning thousands of pounds for his owners. He was fortunate but sadly, thousands of other horses are not so lucky.
